Catchafire Nonprofits Workshop on August 24 in Princeton

The free workshop will provide guidance on effective pitching and communication.

Please see the following announcement from Catchafire regarding an opportunity for nonprofits and service providers.

Good Afternoon Community Partner,

I hope this email finds you well! I wanted to tell you about Catchafire Live & Local — an interactive workshop where we are bringing a highly requested skills-based volunteer in-person.

We are running a workshop to help NJ nonprofits learn how to quickly and successfully speak about their organization to many different audiences. They will get to ask questions and meet with nonprofit professionals and a marketing and communications expert — in the moment. They will also receive:

- Guidance on what to say and how to say it
- Advice on pitch delivery and effective communication
- A guided workshop in which to craft your own 1-2 minute elevator pitch

Catchafire is running this session at Robert Wood Johnson Foundation in Princeton on 8/24 from 9:30am-11:00am. You can find out more information about the skills-based volunteer instructor and sign up here:

We'd love to invite your network to join! Please feel free to share.

Let me know if you have any questions!

Best,
Alexa Rivadeneira
